Helan's Anti Cellulite Treatment Programs

Analyzing the causes, evolution and remedies of Cellulitis are useful in preventing and counteracting these typical, unsightly signs.

Causes

- A slowing down in blood circulation
- Pooling of interstitial liquids (between one cell and another)
- Thickening of connective tissue with the formation of initial mottling

STAGE 1

Slow blood circulation and excessive capillary permeability along with slow lymphatic circulation causes liquid stagnation as well as a build up of undrained waste among cells.

STAGE 2

Collagen fibers weave around this build up, compressing the capillaries and preventing the fat cells from being nourished. On the skin, this creates the mottling and nodules commonly known as the "orange peel effect".

STAGE 3

The nodules join together creating bigger nodules and the fibers that surround them harden by sclerotization. This causes the well-known "mattress phenomenon".

DIET

A real battle is indeed fought in the kitchen! Both the quantity and quality of food need to be suited to the actual needs of the body as a balanced diet influences the fundamental causes of cellulitis by avoiding accumulation and favoring liquid elimination.

LIFESTYLE

The regular practice of a sport helps burn fats and it is therefore advantageous to take advantage of physical activity whenever possible, by walking quickly, going up steps on foot, etc.

APPROPRIATE COSMETIC TREATMENTS

The constant use of effective cosmetic products, like that of a proper diet and physical exercise, allows more than satisfying results to be achieved, especially when combined with massage.

Lymph Massage:

Any anti cellulite product works better with a Lymph Draining Massage. Lymph is your body's way to collect waste like dead bacteria and toxins. Normally, lymph drains and is excreted from the body. As we age, it becomes harder for the Lymph tissues to drain. Lymph massages stimulate the area to assist in drainage.

To self-administer the massage, with your open palm, cupped slightly, "slap" the area for a couple of minutes. Your hand should make a hollow sound, you are not looking at causing pain, you are just stimulating the area to increase blood flow. Periodically rub the area in a circular motion. This will bring blood flow to the area.

There are several deep tissue massagers that are on the market sold as body toning massagers. They are not necessary because the Helan line of Cellulite treatment is very penetrating.

You will see two different methods of treating the cellulite, one involves heating the area to increase blood flow and help "push" the lymph around assisting in its drainage. The second method involves Cold which shrinks the fat cells.

EXFOLIATION:

Exfoliation clears sticky dead skin cells from your skin to allow for the maximum penetration of the cellulite treatments.

Helan Anti-Cellulite Strategy Exfoliating Scrub is formulated for two specific actions:

- ◇ SOFTENING EXFOLIATING due to the very fine microspheres of Coconut that enable the physical removal of dead cells leaving the skin smoother, more receptive and ready to absorb the most targeted ingredients.
- ◇ CAPILLARY TONER to counteract water retention and the sensation of bloating.

How to use it: before a shower massage on hips, thighs, and buttocks, concentrating on the rougher areas to make them smooth and more receptive to subsequent treatments. The microspheres will gently abrade the skin smoothing out the horny layer, removing impurities and dead cells. Rinse with plenty of warm water under the shower
